II.   WHAT ARE COOKIES?

A cookie is a data file created by the server of the website, saved to the hard disk of your device (computer, smartphone, etc.) by the browser.

The cookie contains a unique code that recognizes your browser when you visit the website from now and in the future.

The main purpose of a cookie is therefore simply to allow the website server to adapt the content of the Internet pages to your personal preferences, in order to personalize your visit to this website.

Cookies may be placed by the website's server or by partners that the website may collaborate with.

The website server can only read the cookies that it has placed itself.

It cannot access any other information on your computer or on your mobile device.

Cookies generally facilitate interaction and enhance browsing speed.

The website may therefore use several types of cookies:
- Session cookies: these cookies are temporary and stored in your browser until it is closed. These cookies are mandatory for certain applications or features of the website to work properly.

- Persistent cookies: the website may use persistent cookies to improve your experience (e.g. by providing optimized navigation). These cookies remain in your browser longer. The duration of their storage depends on the configuration choices of your Internet browser. Persistent cookies allow the transmission of information to a web server each time a person visits the website, and may be used in particular to remember your preferences and choices for a website, or to target advertising. Persistent cookies are also called tracking cookies.

- Internal cookies : these cookies are installed by the website at the time of your visit in order to improve your experience.

- Third-party cookies : these cookies are installed by third parties who may be partners of the Company. A third-party cookie corresponds to a file integrated via a browser by a site different from the one you visit, in order to store information locally and track your progress on several sites. These cookies are therefore not hosted on the website.

These cookies are classified according to several types: necessary cookies used for technical purposes, audience measurement cookies, advertising cookies, sharing cookies on social networks, etc.

III.   WHAT ARE COOKIES USED FOR?

Cookies are used for different purposes:

- Functional cookies : they are essential for the operation of the website and allow you to access particular secure spaces such as your shopping cart, your personal space, personalize services by remembering your preferences (choice of language, currency, location, etc.)
They do not require that you restate your choices every time you visit the website. These cookies allow you to store the choices you make in order to improve your experience on the website.
They are for example used to recognize you when you return to the website, to remember the choices you have made, the items you have placed in the cart etc... and provide improved and personalized elements on your preferences and consumption habits.

- Analytical or performance cookies : these cookies allow the Company to track the use and performance of the website and to improve its functioning. They make it possible, for example, to know the most visited pages of the website, store the information you provide on online forms, do statistical analyses (e.g.: the number of unique visitors), analyse website traffic and the popularity of our pages.

  These cookies are intended to facilitate and analyse the functionality of our website and to make it easier to use and offer a more personalized user experience.

- Advertising cookies : these cookies collect information about your browsing habits in order to present you with advertisements tailored to your interests. These cookies record your visit to the website, the pages you have visited and the links you have followed as well as your browsing outside the website. They are also used to limit the number of times you see the same ad and to measure the effectiveness of advertising campaigns.
  They are generally placed on the website by third parties with the permission of the Company.
